

Children of Albion II (Albions Children)

Children of Albion II - Romans and Oceans begins where the first in the series, Bronze and Iron ends. The settlement at Elaeths Hill grows as new people join and alliances are built between the outlying roundhouses and villages. Trading and the discovery of more precious metals increase the wealth of the people and a new knarr is built. Albion Sunrise, Dream of Greine and Seagrace of Dumnonii lead Elaeth, Weyland, Marcus and Iago past the Pillars of Hercules and into the Mare Nostrum and here they begin trading with the people of North Africa, the Egypt of the Pharaohs, Greece, Rome and the Levant. More importantly, partnerships with Aegyptian and Roman traders are forged and a valuable friendship with Octavius Augustus the reluctant Emperor of The Roman Empire. There are sea battles against both African pirates and Roman renegades but this does not prevent them winning the greatest prizes of all; knowledge, new skills and materials to help them improve their lives in the settlement of the Dumnonii in Albion. Here too there are battles with Durotriges raiders and Wetlanders but this does not prevent them building roads and the beginnings of a shipyard and port of their own. The foundations of the trading and manufacturing empire are laid, inspired by the dreams of Elaeth of the Hill.
