

Too Late Two Lives

Jennifer Carters law practice in New Iberia, Louisiana is crammed with a string of unusual experiences, starting with her being selected for jury duty in a criminal case, which causes her to be looked upon with disfavor by the courthouse crowd. Then a lawyer opposing her in a case tries to pull a fast one and incurs her wrath. Her association with her client in that case leads to a romantic encounter with him and an introduction to his friend whos seeking damages because she claims her husband kidnapped her years ago, altering her life. Against her better judgment, Jennifer agrees to represent her in a suit to recover damages, something she rarely does because she usually represents the defendants in damage claims. While that case is working its way through the legal system, her insurance client asks her to defend a class action suit against it seeking to recover over $97 million in penalties because it didnt start adjusting claims timely after Hurricane Gustave. The case seems fishy and it is. The plaintiff lawyers pressure her to throw the case and she sets out to bring them down. When the class action is resolved, she travels to Mexico to get evidence to try her plaintiff case. The case takes an unusual twist during the trial, resulting in misgivings on Jennifers part. The cases involve the timeliness of the suits filed and the life lived by her client in Mexico. Hence the title: Too Late Two Lives.
